FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON,
Of New York.

Tuesday, October 16, 1888

Stick to One Thing.

Americans as a people are somewhat lacking in steadfastness of purpose in their various pursuits, and in no country on earth is it likely that such sweeping changes take place in business affairs in such short spaces of time as have often to be noted in our midst. Many farmers go from sheep to cattle, from cattle to horses, from this thing to that with a recklessness that is sometimes absolutely appalling, and in the end quit with less than the conservative neighbor who has kept nearer in "de middle ob de road." One of these fine days it may appear that the world is short of its requirements in the line of beef, and then will the "old Hutes" of the cattle trade gather in their harvest. There will be no "corner" in the business, but kaleidoscopic changes are all the while going on in the commerce of this bustling, driving Western world of ours; and there are those who already detect what they regard as the first well-defined whiff of an able-bodied breeze which shall fill the flapping sails of the cattle-growers long becalmed; and those who fail, therefore, to keep a bit of canvas set will have no one to fault but themselves should a sailing gale set in by the Spring of 1889 and yet avail them naught.

GENERAL HARRISON is certainly proving himself to be one of the most interesting and resourceful public speakers that the country has ever known. His addresses are models of vigor, dignity and good taste, and no man in the party is doing more to bring about that splendid triumph of Republican principles which is now practically assured.

EVEN tax is looking up and the crops, with few exceptions, are good. If heaven helps them who help themselves, so does it help a party that helps mankind. Fair and votes will certainly elect Harrison and Morton.

THE remarks of General Harrison to his Irish fellow citizens have won him many additional friends and supporters among that race. They know he means what he says. General Harrison isn't any other sort of a man.

OUR Democratic friends find that much they would like to say against the Republican party was said four years ago. It is hard to start a brilliant explosion with burnt powder.

It is a noteworthy fact that every pivotal State has an exceptionally good local ticket to help the national ticket along. There's no use talking; that counts.

THE Mills of the Democratic party may grind the protective tariff a little slow, but he intends to grind it exceedingly fine.

Heading the East.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—The long promised resolution for the final adjournment of Congress was introduced in the House this morning. There was a conference of the Democratic leaders before the House met, but they were unable to agree upon the matter.

Oates of Alabama undertook to solve the problem by presenting a resolution for an adjournment on Wednesday next. The resolution was accompanied by a preamble reciting that there is not a quorum present in either the Senate or the House, and the Speaker declared, in answer to an inquiry from Latham of Texas, that Congress could not adjourn sine die without the presence of a quorum if any member saw fit to make the point.

Oates then withdrew the preamble to the resolution, and it was laid over until to-morrow for further action.

Prior to this Wheeler of Alabama had offered a buncome resolution, reciting that the Senate T-riff bill is devised to maintain high taxes and foster monopolies, and it is the duty of every Democrat in Congress to maintain the contest until the Constitutional expiration of the present Congress. The resolution was referred after Mr. Dingley and Mr. Farquhar had denounced it as the product of a Democratic caucus.

Blaine Gives Mills a Scorching.

A Decision Against Garland's Pan-Electric Scheme.

Blaine Talks to Another Immense Audience in Indiana—Miscellaneous.

Free-Trade Mills in a Corn.

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Oct. 15.—In a speech here this afternoon to 12,000 people, Mr. Blaine said: "Mr. Chairman: Last Wednesday, at Goshen, Indiana, I stated that Mr. Havemeyer, President of the Sugar Trust, had appeared before the Ways and Means Committee when the Tariff bill was up, and, according to Senator Allison, had secured arrangement by which $6,000,000 were put into the pockets of that trust. Mr. Mills, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, in a special card printed this morning in the Louisville papers, denies that Havemeyer ever appeared before the committee, or that any such arrangement as I have spoken of was made for his benefit. I do not know what Mr. Mills means by this denial, unless it is that Havemeyer never appeared before the full committee when in regular session. If he means that he did not appear before members of the committee, in the committee room, then he is contradicted not by myself, but by the Congressional Record.

On page 6,508 of the Congressional Record for the current session, issued on July 10th, debate is reported in which Breckenridge of Arkansas, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, admitted that he had invited Havemeyer and his attorney to the room of the Committee on Ways and Means on the 12th of April to talk over the sugar tariff, and Breckenridge of Kentucky, another member of the Ways and Means Committee, admitted having met Havemeyer and his attorney at another time. All that I stated is substantiated by what I now quote, and in consequence the sugar standard was changed from No. 13, originally reported and printed in the Tariff bill, to No. 16, as reported by the Ways and Means Committee, and passed the House. And it was in this change that Senator Allison paid the six millions of dollars that the Mills committee put in the pockets of the trust.

"I may take Mr. Mills' denial, if he chooses, that Havemeyer never appeared before him, but here were two members of the Ways and Means Committee who openly acknowledged they had heard not only Havemeyer but his attorney, and that the attorney was skilled in every feature of the sugar tariff, and not only knew what points were advantageous to the Government, but also knew still further what points were advantageous to the trust. The latter points seem to have been adopted by the Ways and Means Committee, though Mr. Mills did not know it. [Laughter and cheers.]

"I find also in the papers to-day a report of a Democratic meeting in New York before which Mr. Fairchild, Secretary of the Treasury, appeared to defend his policy of loaning sixty millions of the people's money to certain pet banks without interest. His defense consists chiefly in proving that I overestimated the amount these banks could make out of that transaction. He says that I calculated interest on the whole sixty millions, whereas the banks are compelled to keep 25 per cent. in their vaults. [Poor banks!] What hardships they have to endure! [Laughter and cheers.]

"I think Fairchild's answer is positively amusing, and it recalls to me the colloquy of a man who drew $10,000 prize in a lottery a few years ago, when the habit was to deduct 15 per cent. before paying the amount. 'How lucky it was,' said he, 'that I did not draw $20,000; it would have ruined me to pay the premium.' [Laughter and cheers.] Fairchild does not manfully and frankly confront the issue. He does not state to the people how the banks could afford to buy Government bonds when the Government itself could not. If it was an advantageous proceeding for these banks to invest sixty millions of dollars in Government bonds, why was it not still more advantageous for the Government to do it? [Cheers.] I press this question upon Mr. Fairchild, for he has not answered why, if the banks could make two to two and a half per cent. upon the purchase of United States four, the Treasury Department could not make as much [cheers]; when, by doing what the banks do, he could have wiped out sixty millions of the public debt. [Cheers.] I press this question because it is a pertinent question.

"General Harrison made a well-grounded accusation and used a happy phrase when he accused the National Administration of 'burying the surplus.' If Fairchild had invested sixty millions in United States bonds it would have appeared in the surplus, but if he loaned it to pet banks, it still appears as part of a frightful surplus to get rid of which the people must destroy the protective tariff.

"There is a very suggestive point bearing on that to which I beg

Fairchild's attention: Between March, 1885, and June 30, 1885—a year and four months from Cleveland's inauguration—the surplus in the Treasury increased $25,000,000, and the public debt was only reduced $50,000,000. Of this $50,000,000, forty-four and one-half millions was a compulsory purchase for the sinking fund. The further fact is revealed that there was at that very date $50,000,000 of three per cent. bonds that could have been called in at par, and they were left in the hands of private holders, drawing interest, in order that the burden of the surplus might be raised, and, as General Harrison says, 'carefully nursed.' [Cheers.]

Mr. Blaine said that when the Democratic party came into power four years ago it had found no surplus at all, though during the campaign of 1884 the Democratic speakers had placed the alleged surplus at $400,000,000. The policy of President Cleveland's administration was to accumulate a surplus which could have been avoided by paying off bonds as they became due.

A Pan-Electric Decision.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to-day rendered a decision in the notorious Pan-Electric telephone case. J. Harris Rogers, who organized the company, sued his associates, among whom were Attorney-General Garland, Senator Harris and General Joe Johnson, in the Circuit Court for an accounting of moneys and stock obtained by them. The Circuit Court decided against Rogers. He then appealed to the Supreme Court of the District. That tribunal reversed the decision of the lower court and compels the defendants to make an accounting. The case will go to the Supreme Court of the United States.

West Virgin is All Right.

RHINECLIFF, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Levi P. Morton was interviewed to-day. He expressed the utmost confidence in Republican success in West Virginia.

ENGLISH PRESS OPINIONS.

What British Free Traders Think of President Cleveland.

The Mills' bill is viewed by all parties alike as the first decisive and certain step in the direction of free trade.—Sheffield Independent.

Of the adoption of free trade by the United States depends the greater share of English prosperity for a good many years to come.—London Economist.

We venture to assert that England will reap the largest share of any advantages that may arise from the adoption of the ideas now advocated by the free trade party in the United States.—British Hosiery Review.

If Mr. Cleveland should be re-elected the United States tariff will be modified very materially in the direction of free trade, a result which cannot, of course, fail to be beneficial to the trade of other countries, and especially of our own.—London People.

The American election is infinitely more important to Englishmen than their own internal politics just at this juncture. The main question at issue is English free trade against the continental system of protection.—London Sunday Times.

It is the intention of the Republicans of the United States to fight the election on the question of free trade. The issue is, unfortunately, a false one. Apart from this question British sympathies cannot fail to be on the side of President Cleveland. The Republicans have chosen to ally themselves with the declared enemies of this country.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

We here are interested in this thing a good deal. If America opens her ports to the manufactured goods of this country (Great Britain) it will give a great impetus to trade. We will soon flood the Yankee markets with cheap clothes, cheap hardware, cheap boots and shoes, and other articles that we can manufacture more cheaply than they. We will be gainers by this. So, by all means, let us pray for the success of the free trade policy of Cleveland.—Glasgow Observer.

Change in the Railroad Office.

The Winnemucca Silver State says: J. A. McBride, who has been Station Agent here for some time, has quit the employ of the railroad company and goes into business with W. T. Smith in a wholesale and retail store at Elko. J. L. May, for many years manager of the Telegraph office, takes the place of Mr. McBride, where he will be assisted by Mr. Cameron. E. G. Kalisher succeeded Mr. May in the telegraph office.

Run Over and Killed.

The Silver State says: A section man known as Pete was run over and killed at Palisade Saturday night. He had been at work on the Eureka & Palisade railroad, and is supposed that he was attempting to board the train while it was in motion when killed.

The Northern Unionism.

W. D. Salt, druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles and was cured of rheumatism of ten years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my twenty years' experience is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidney and Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

The fight between the Democrats and Republicans will be a bitter and determined one. Both parties are engaged in electing their man, and are striving every effort to see the other candidate in the Presidential chair. While we do not believe in any man who will be elected, we are prepared to wager that the worst case of backache or kidney complaint can be effectively cured by the use of Oregon Kidney Tea. A FINE BREED OF CATTLE.

Mr. Youatt on the Excellence of the Devon.

Mr. Youatt says the Devon will not only take on flesh rapidly, giving better results in proportion to feed and care, and consequently pay the producer a larger profit than other breeds, but in the great markets of England, notably in those of London (the Capital of the "beef-eaters"), the flesh of the Devon ranks second only in quality to the little Highland ox, and is recognized as of superior value both to the butcher and the consumer, to the butcher because it is weight in those parts which bring the highest prices, and that the Devon dresses a larger proportion of clean meat to the weight of the living animal; or, in other words, there is less of offal than with other breeds; and to the consumer, because the meat is more perfectly mottled, the fat and lean being so perfectly mingled as to make it the ideal beef. The milk of the Devon is rich in casein and butter, yields its milk slowly, and is for drinking purposes superior to that of any of the breeds of cattle. In product of quantity the butter is second only to the Jersey, and in quality second to none. Devons are favorites wherever cattle are used for draft. They make the most handsome oxen as to form, the very best as to strength, docility, quickness of movement and docility. The uniformity of size, color and general appearance gives to a herd of Devons greater beauty than any other breed of cattle, and the cattle are more uniformly good specimens of the breed. Their docility is remarkable, and a vicious Devon bull is exceedingly rare.

WOES OF CANDIDATES.

They find it impossible to please everybody.

Man that is nominated of Convention is of few days and full of woes. He arises in the morning, and lo! the enemy hath gotten his record, and the newsboy crieth it aloud in the streets of the city.

He seeth his substance consumed by the striker and the worker, while the heeler devouteth him even as the locust doth the green field.

All day long do fellows of the baser sort lie in wait for him at his gateway, and say lend me 5 shekels, the which, when they have gotten, they spend at the beer saloon of his enemy and laugh at him!

His days are filled with the sound of the brass band, and his slumber is broken by the scribes, who regard not the prophecies, but awaken him at all hours and command him be thou interviewed, and straightway push him into the people words the like which he had uttered not.

He maketh a speech unto the people and the enemy crieth he is windy, and a man of vain words.

He saith naught, but shaketh the hand of the populace, and lo! the people declare he is a chump and knoweth not what to say.

He is prudent with his treasure, and lo! the striker, the heeler and the drummer stand in the streets and cry he is a chummy mug, and loveth not his fellow-man.

He giveth his shekels to the cause, and straightway the scribes and prophets of the enemy proclaim from the house-tops that he is a hoodler, and cry out with a loud voice: "This man would destroy the Axis of our liberties!"

A remarkable instance of the increase of temperature in the earth toward the center has been presented at Pesh, where the deepest artesian well in the world is that now being bored for the purpose of supplying the public baths and other establishments with hot water. A depth of 6,140 feet has already been reached, and it furnishes 176,000 gallons daily at a temperature of 158° F. The municipality have recently voted a large subvention in order that one boring may be continued to a greater depth, not only to obtain a larger volume of water, but at a temperature of 176° F.

Why suffer with that aching head when you may be cured with Ayer's Cathartic Pills? Send a recent stamp to Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., for a set of their attractive album cards.
